ROADMAP

RISKS

Every business comes with a significant risk ratio involved. In this very section, you'll see some of the risks involved with using PLC.

1. Blockchain Risk

Its block chain is susceptible to being congested sometimes, this makes transactions get delayed or lost. Fortunately, this is not a common occurrence.

2. Token Security

Cyber hackers and/ or other malicious groups may attempt to interfere with our smart contracts in different ways which include, but are not limited to, denial of service attacks and malware attacks.

3. Access To Private Keys

PLC purchased by you can be solely held and controlled by you, in your wallet. These assets as discussed earlier require private keys for accessibility. If these private keys are lost, it will result in a loss of your PLC token.

DISCLAIMERS

PLC tokens are not the security types of tokens, as they are fully functional utility tokens.

PLC tokens are non-refundable. There are no exclusive promises about future performances or will be made concerning PLC, including no promises of inherent values, non-exclusive promises about continuing payments, and as well there are no guarantees that PLC will hold a particular value.
